

How to Add a Legacy Contact

for Your Apple ID

A Legacy Contact is someone you choose to access your Apple account data after you pass away. This data might include photos, messages, and more. Follow these steps in order to add a Legacy Contact.

Who Can Be a Legacy Contact?

- Anyone you choose, regardless of Apple device ownership.
- Multiple Legacy Contacts can be added.

What Happens After You Pass Away?

- Your designated Legacy Contact requests access using an access key and your death certificate.
- Apple verifies the request and provides a special Apple ID for accessing your account.
- Your original Apple ID and password no longer work.
- Access is granted for three years, after which the account is deleted.

What You Need:

An Apple device running iOS 15.2 or later, or macOS Monterey 12.1 or later

Two-factor authentication enabled

To be over 13 years old

Advisory services are offered through Forefront, a DBA of Forefront Wealth Partners, LLC. Securities are offered through Calton & Associates, Inc., member FINRA and SIPC. Forefront is not owned or controlled by Calton & Associates, Inc.

FOREFRONT

How to Add a Legacy Contact

for Your Apple ID (continued)

How to Add a Legacy Contact:

1. Go to Settings (iPhone/iPad) or System Settings (Mac).
2. Tap or click your name, then "Sign-In & Security."
3. Tap or click "Legacy Contact."
4. Tap or click "Add Legacy Contact."
5. Follow the on-screen instructions.

Sharing the Access Key:

- The access key is crucial for your Legacy Contact to gain access.
- You can share it via Messages, print it, or save it with your estate planning documents.

Removing a Legacy Contact:

- You can remove a Legacy Contact at any time in your Apple ID settings.

Important Notes:

- Certain data, like purchases and Keychain information, cannot be accessed by your Legacy Contact.
- Any Legacy Contact can make decisions about your account data, including deletion.
- Documentation requirements for accessing the account may vary by region.

Advisory services are offered through Forefront, a DBA of Forefront Wealth Partners, LLC. Securities are offered through Calton & Associates, Inc., member FINRA and SIPC. Forefront is not owned or controlled by Calton & Associates, Inc.

FOREFRONT